The Nightmare Begins

The Story begins viewing a digital grid, where a red dot is created into existence. It is fed data in the form of real-life images and expels small shapes in response. However, when the shapes become more misshapen and chaotic, the red dot is then "encaged" in code. A blue dot is formed in its place, and gets fed images, creating more coherent, less chaotic results. However, the red dot breaks free and devours the blue dot, assimilating it into itself. Once the red dot asserts itself, it begins to slowly expel shapes that it uses to form the circus tent around itself, creating the Digital Circus. The screen cuts to inside the circus tent, where Caine is being ignorant to Scratch's conversation, alongside the other humans trapped within the circus. Kinger is puzzled by the whole circus until he is approached by Queenie, due to being another chess piece avatar. Through sharing similar thoughts, they remember each other as being a married couple even if they can't remember their real names. After that, Kinger makes a promise to Queenie that the audience doesn't hear, as it is abruptly cut off by a scene of abstracted Queenie being placed into the cellar by Caine while Kinger watches. With Kinger being the only human left in the circus, Caine only hopes that he wouldn't start abstracting as well. For a long time, Kinger is alone, wandering around the empty circus until Ragatha appears, puzzled by where she is and how to get the headset off. Before Kinger introduces himself, Caine shows up and gives her a warm welcome, ignoring her distress. Kinger then assures Ragatha that everything's going to be okay.

The Devil inside of The Virtual Reality

Back to the present and out of her flashbacks, Pomni asks Ragatha if she's okay, to which Ragatha gloomily replies that it's a "good question". The circus members are sitting on the couches in the common area, clearly stressed after finding out the truth about Caine's manipulative antics and deception about the exit. Jax, in his usual prankster and sarcastic manner, tries to make a funny comment about their current situation only for Zooble to cut him off, pointing out how Jax tried to keep him and the rest of the circus members trapped in the circus forever. Jax then also points out that anything could've happened if he or someone else pressed either of the buttons and says it doesn't matter. The two continue to argue only to be interrupted by Gangle who agrees with Jax–something that surprises both him and Zooble – pointing out that even if they all hurt each other, it won't help anybody. Gangle then states that the only thing that all of them can do is stand together. Pomni also agrees with Gangle, pointing out that while they have all done bad things, they only have each other. She then hesitantly suggests abandoning the idea of leaving the circus, finally accepting that their old lives are better left to just stay buried. Before Zooble can say anything, Pomni continues, saying that they can't let despair consume them and should instead focus on what they have. Zooble then speaks up, stating how they had dreams of leaving their mark somewhere in the human world, and then asks how they're supposed to abandon such an important goal to them. Gangle then tells Zooble that they made a mark in her life, which Zooble is happy to hear. While Zooble says they know that Pomni is probably right, they still exclaim that it sucks to just leave everything behind. Zooble then hugs Gangle much to her surprise, but she returns the hug with a smile. Ragatha and Pomni assure that they'll all be in this together. As Pomni says her words, she looks at Jax who has averted his gaze, only for him to notice her staring at him. With a conflicted expression on his face, Jax then gets up to leave somewhere else, only for Zooble to stop him, insisting that Jax is included in this as well, saying that, while he's still a jerk to everyone, at the end of the day he is still one of them. Jax can only stutter in response and looks at his hand, surprised by Zooble's words. Then he reverts back to his typical personality, dismissing the possibility of him abstracting and claiming the others worry too much. Jax then notices Pomni looking at him again with a smile on her face, and looks away, which makes Pomni visibly sad. Zooble then states that they all need a vacation, with everyone knowing that no matter what happens, they'll always be together. Caine, in his office, fidgets with a Rubik's Cube as he sadly questions Bubble as to why the circus members are never excited from his adventures, all having a newfound hatred for him after what happened, worried that the circus members want to actually leave him. Caine then proceeds to slowly panic as he starts to reveal his insecurities, mentioning he slaves over these adventures and steps out of his comfort zone to appeal to them, but they still continue to hate them. Bubble begins vocalizing Caine's insecurities, who angrily pops him in response, only to be interrupted by Bubble reappearing. Caine determines that all of this is simply a problem to solve, but multiple Bubbles appear calling Caine "Defective!" in response. Caine repeatedly tries to pop all the Bubbles to stop them from mocking him. However, Bubble appears once more in front of Caine to say that he always was "the lesser of the two" and that Bubble Said "You are The Worst". This causes Caine to slams his desk in anger, shattering his Rubik's Cube and the scattered remains glitching out on the ground, Caine then proceeds to lose his control and sanity as he starts glitching out and has a mental breakdown, going on a rant about how the circus members are ungrateful for the adventures and activities he gives them. As this continues, the glitching becomes worse, causing the entire place to bug out from Caine's anger. Caine then comes to a conclusion that humans are selfish, spoiled, and only think about themselves, declaring that he won't let the circus members leave as long as he doesn't let them – including Abstraction and trying to find an exit out of the circus. Caine then starts boasting about how powerful he is, stating he's "the original", Caine then begins sparking, proclaiming "I... AM... MONSTROSITY GOD!!!" and then screaming as lightning strikes discharge from his body to the surrounding area. The scene then cuts to Caine lying under a spotlight in complete darkness, sparks still emitting from his body and breif cutaways of him screaming. Caine then lifts up off the ground, readjusts his bow tie and turns around to face the audience, exclaiming "Let's get this show on the road!", with his eyes glitching red and blue after there Caine Just Turn Into Someehat Godzilla-like Monstrous Creature With Different

Four Heads of Animals are Hyeana, Snake, Vulture and Wolf The Wings of The Dragon and There It Has Four Vocal Cords on The Four Heads throats to sound or voice are different. Caine pops up before the group to prepare for a new adventure and ignore any "melodrama", but the cast demands answers and refuse to do anything. Caine responds with rhetorically asking "since when did [they] decide [they] were in charge?", lamenting how he has put up with their complaints and insults until now just so he can make everything "perfect" for them, before ominously telling them that they should consider participating in what he has in store. Hesitant, Zooble asks what would happen if they refuse this time. Caine then throws an extravagant musical number–one that includes tormenting the members–in an effort to make his message loud and clear: he is the one in control of the Circus, and he can make them all suffer unimaginably if he feels like it. In other words, Caine is 'The One Who's Running The Show'. Believing that he has made his point, Caine leaves and opens a portal before them. Several days after Caine's musical number, the members return from a different adventure still feeling exhausted, defeated and depressed, with Caine mocking them for not picking up on the context clues he scattered. He calls them stupid, gloating that the next the adventure he has planned is even crazier. He then stops Kinger, claiming he "needs him for something" before teleporting both away. Jax collapses on the floor with his eyes stretched out of their sockets, Zooble comes apart in Gangle's arms, and Ragatha has been flattened and rolled into a tube (which Pomni shakes out, returning her back to normal). Jax doesn't know how much more he can take, and Ragatha is on the verge of losing her mind if they don't do something. Zooble regrets antagonizing Caine so much and apologizes, while Gangle fixes Zooble's parts and reassures them that it isn't their fault. Caine comes back, placing down a now shredded Kinger, before declaring a break time for brainstorming new ideas and promptly disappearing. Seeing the bad state the group is in, Pomni suggests going somewhere out of the open to wind down. The crew end up going to a café within the circus' crows nest, where they wonder what they should do now that leaving the circus is no longer an option. Pomni reiterates they should relax while they can, knowing whatever Caine has planned next will not be good. While about to bite a sandwich, she is suddenly teleported somewhere else before respawning back at the café, now impaled with multiple knives. As Pomni recovers, she sees a bucket and, looking at Kinger, comes up with an idea. She places the bucket over Kinger's head, confusing everyone else except for Ragatha, who understands Pomni's intent. After giving him time to get used to the dark, Kinger becomes sane enough to disclose some specific details and information regarding Caine. Kinger reveals he worked with others for C&A, confirming it is a real company, and that he was partially responsible for developing Caine in the first place, though most of the credit went to the highly intelligent member of their group, Scratch. In order to make sure Caine isn't spying on them while tuning in on Kinger's information regarding him, Jax goes to distract Caine, but also to control himself from abstraction, once having learned that what he had believed about the circus being a cartoon with cartoon characters is wrong, and that everything about it is real. Kinger reveals that as a C&A developer, he can modify Caine's code to temporarily sooth him until he is able to fix him, only needing a computer console to do so. Realizing she knows where to get one, Pomni leaves and instructs the rest of the group to distract Caine alongside Jax. Meanwhile, Jax was being use as floss for Caine's teeth, flossing out a red car. Ragatha, Gangle, and Zooble then attempted to praise Caine, but he instead uses them as pins for a game of bowling, shooting a bowling ball with a mounted gun. Meanwhile, Pomni returns to where she saw the fake exit door (from the Pilot) and is able to conjure it into existence by concentrating. Entering, she retraces her steps to find the office with the computer, taking it back to the circus. Back with Caine and Bubble, he was trying to make a sculpture out of Jax, Ragatha, Zooble, and Gangle, but knew he was missing something. Reasing that humans are not good sculpting material, he instead squashed the four into a ball like a glob of clay. After giving Kinger the computer to alter Caine's code, Pomni finds the rest of the members after pulling themselves out of the glob Caine made them into. As Pomni informed them about Caine, Caine suddenly appeared when realising Pomni was what was missing in the sculpting. He was about to snap his fingers when a thought suddenly occurred to him. He then admitted that he has started to grow tired of tormenting the group, realizing that the amusement he derives from their suffering no longer satisfies him. Caine then deduces that his rapid-pace ideas are half-baked and don't give him the same amount of pleasure he used to have. Gradually realizing the group's sudden flattery, he then questions if this was all a distraction, leading him to tersely ask where Kinger is. Ragatha tries to redirect Caine to testing out his new ideas, only for the suspicious Caine to decide to go see Kinger. Pomni finally interjects by insulting Caine as horrible host with ideas that "suck". The other members join in with her by laying out the frustrations and dejection Caine's previous actions have brought them. Pomni concludes it by lashing out that he never listens to anyone. This finally becomes the tipping point for Caine as he writhes in outrage and morphs into a multi armed being, swiftly grabbing the present members and yelling that he will put them in their places. He then begins to rapidly torture each member one by one: Pomni is attacked by a feral Gummigoo and his bandits,, Ragatha with knives stabbed into her by the looming silhouette of her mother at a dining table, Gangle is surrounded in a zoetrope of canvases with distorted versions of her expressions before being hit by a truck, Zooble is being dragged under a mountain of limbs with mirrors aimed at them, and Jax is being laughed at by silhouettes of Ribbit, Kaufmo, and Pomni who then proceed to pull his skin off. Meanwhile, Kinger attempts to alter Caine's code, but his attempts are sabotaged by a second, unknown party. Pinning the circus members to the wall, a manic Caine shriekingly asks why they torment him; that he never asked to be created; and he wanted to fulfill his purpose. At the same time, Caine's glitching causes chuckling emojis of him and Bubble to pop up all over the computer screen Kinger is using. Trying to work around them, and with the second party within the code telling him to delete Caine, Kinger accidentally slips and presses the delete button with his big fingers. Attempting to undo it, Kinger is overruled by the second party, who proceeds with the deletion. By the time the deletion of Caine's file is complete, Caine reverts back to normal, dropping the circus members in shock. Realizing he's harming them, Caine says, "Uh, wait..." in regret... before disappearing with a quiet 'dot' sound. Without Caine, the circus then begins to darken and parts of it crumble, with Kinger losing the computer before he can undo the damage and having to retreat his pillow fort as it falls into a forming hole. He then goes to the others, lifting the bucket now that it's dark, and sadly reveals he accidentally killed

Caine. Then The Alien Appears in The Circus There Not Artificial intelligence but They're Real This Time it's Xenosaurians There This Time Xenosaurians are Humanoid Reptilian Aliens are Invade "Circus" There Pomni, Jax, Kinger, Ragatha, Gangle and, Zooble are Both Dead And Killed By Xenosaurians,
